From Caroline

Hello, Everyone,

Happy Monday! I hope you all had a safe, relaxing Labor Day Holiday weekend? It was certainly pretty quiet around here. I hear that some of you ventured off on intrepid road trips and out-of-town excursions - feel free to share your favorite trip photo on our Zoom Room session tonight - would love to see where you've been!

Saturday afternoon I attended a Zoom Happy Hour with the Region 11 Directors' Group. It was fun to catch up with them and share updates about how we're all managing to keep things going. We're not the only group that isn't actually attempting to rehearse but we definitely seem to be in the minority. Having tried it, I personally don't think it's fun to sing, muted, along with a single audible voice? (But I do love singing along with my favorite recordings - everyone is different, so, whatever works, right?) I did extoll the virtues of our style of Zoom session so maybe a couple of other Choruses will give it a try as a break from virtual rehearsals.

Speaking of "giving it a try", I've been experimenting with refinishing old furniture pieces. I started with a couple of "victims" in our own house and now I'm moving on to street-salvaged treasures and Salvation Army finds. It feels good to work with your hands and, now, the luxury of a having a little extra down time is giving many of us craft-minded types a chance to dig into projects of choice. Great minds, as they say, think alike - I heard from Linda B. yesterday that she had to special order a sewing machine because everywhere was sold out!

What have you all been up to to stay out of mischief - I'd love to know!

See you tonight...

Cx
